SOUTH AFRICA AT WICKET

ALL DAY FOR 220.

LAST MAN BOWLED
RIGHT ON TIME.

BRILLIANT FIELDING BY CHAPMAN'S MEN.

A DRAW POSSIBLE.

Durban, Feb. 23.
South Africa batted all day to-day for 220 runs in the Fifth Test match, the deliberate, slow progress being obviously the carrying out of a policy of winning the rubber by making a draw of the final match. The last wicket fell just before stumps were drawn for 252 runs, England having no chance to bat.

Siedle and Mitchell, who had put together 32 runs on Saturday, brightened up their play sufficiently before lunch to-day to add 62 runs to the total without being separated. Both players were cautious in the extreme, Mitchell giving a very stylish display of defensive cricket. He began to open out a trifle before the interval, and overtop his partner, the scores being Siedle 45 not out and Mitchell 49 not out, when play was suspended.

Partnership Broken.

Mitchell was more entertaining on resumption (before 3,500 spectators), compiling 24 out of 39 runs added before the first wicket partnership was broken. Mitchell was clean-bowled by Hammond with the score at 127, of which Mitchell had made 73. He had been at the wicket for three hours and twenty-five minutes, and had obtained four boundary hits.

Siedle survived his exactly eight minutes, in which time he made three runs. He fell into White's c and b trap, having made 57 in 193 minutes. His innings was sound, but ultra-cautious. It included one 4.

With the dismissal of the opening pair, England got definitely on top, though all the batsmen displayed a determination to sit on the spiles as long as possible. The third wicket fell at 157, the fourth at 163, and the fifth at 168. Peables did the good work getting rid of Taylor and Christy.

Collapse After Tea.

Viljoen and Dalton (ten and 13 respectively) held their ends up until the tea interval, when the total was 189 for 5.

After tea, the crowd swelled to 5,000. Viljoen and Dalton showed the brightest cricket of the day, putting on 35 runs for the sixth wicket in comparatively quick time. Viljoen fell a victim to Tate at 16, and Dalton, after compiling a useful 31 was neatly taken by Farrimond behind the wicket.

McMillan alone offered resistance afterwards. Vincent was caught by Chapman after making six. Bell was clean bowled before he had opened his account, and Cochran's balls were disturbed when he had made four, the innings closing at 252.

A tribute should be paid to England's fielding which was superb. Not a single extra was conceded throughout the innings, and very few runs were given away in the field. Peables returned the best bowling analysis, taking 4 wickets for 67 runs.

BAD ACCIDENTS TO FOOTBALLERS.

SHANGHAI PLAYERS SENT TO HOSPITAL.

BATH-ROOM MISHAP.

Shanghai's brilliantly successful interport soccer team started the return journey in the early hours of this morning their spirits somewhat dampened by the fact that they were forced to leave without two of their colleagues, who had to be taken to the French Hospital after yesterday's match.

Both are seriously injured and may have to remain in Hongkong for some time.

The injured men are Chow, their popular goalkeeper, and Vance, who played such a splendid game at left half on Saturday and again yesterday.

Chow was injured in making a brilliant save from Atkins. The R.A.F. player could not check his spirit for possession, and Chow received a severe kick in the body and one on the head. It is feared that he has fractured some ribs.

Vance met with an extraordinary accident after the game was over, slipping on the wet floor when stepping out of his bath. The back of his head came into heavy contact with the edge of the bath and for some time he was semi-conscious. Later, he dressed himself, but did not seem his normal self and after a medical examination he was ordered to hospital suffering from severe concussion.

Partnership Broken.

Mitchell was more entertaining on resumption (before 3,500 spectators), compiling 24 out of 39 runs added before the first wicket partnership was broken. ## FLAMBOYANT INDIA SPEECH.

THE INCORRIGIBLE
MR. CHURCHILL.

SPITEFUL ATTACK
ON GANDHI.

LORD BURNHAM ADDS
A DESCRIPTION.

A SUPREME ISSUE.

Mr. Winston Churchill, the incorrigible, is continuing his "crusade" against self-government for India, making another most mischievous speech last night in an address to his constituents, embodying rather crude personalities regarding Mahatma Gandhi.

London, Feb. 23.
Mr. Churchill to-night sought a vote of confidence from his constituents for his attitude towards the future of India in the Empire, an attitude which involved his resignation from the Conservative "Shadow Cabinet."

It will be recalled that following Mr. Baldwin's denunciation of Mr. Churchill's attitude in the House of Commons, the ex-Chancellor definitely broke off relations with his former chief.

Surprised and Alarmed.

Addressing the Council of the West Essex Unionist Association at a meeting in London, convened at his request, Mr. Churchill defended his resignation from the business committee of the Conservative Party, saying that he found, as a member, he could not give full effect to his convictions about India. He agreed to the Conservative delegates taking part in the Round Table Conference, but was surprised and alarmed at the sudden landslide of opinion which took place. He could only say that upon India "Mr. Baldwin and I do not mean the same thing."

"A Seditious Fakir."

Mr. Churchill then reviewed the position in India, saying that he was unable to serve any administration about whose Indian policy he was not reassured.

He said it was alarming and nauseating to see Gandhi, "a Middle Temple lawyer, now a seditious fakir, striding half-naked up the steps of the Viceregal Palace to parley on equal terms with the representative of the King-Emperor."

Gandhi's well-known aims, he said, were a strange basis for discussions which were apparently intended to be a preliminary to another Round Table Conference in India.

It was vital for the Conservative Party immediately to arouse public opinion against such false steps, and he personally intended to do his best.

"A Supreme Issue."

He would be much strengthened, he added, if his constituents voted him their confidence.

India was not an ordinary party question. It was a supreme issue, comparable with August 4, 1914, the outbreak of the Great War, comparable with the General Strike.

To entrust the welfare of three hundred million millions to an oligarchy of Hindu politicians would mean their exploitation and oppression, in the same way as the proletariat was treated in China. It would be a shameful act of cowardice, desertion and dishonour.

Decisive Opportunity.

He concluded: "The decisive opportunity may soon be at hand. Victory may again reward the Conservative Party. Let it be a victory which will proclaim to the world that the heart of the Empire is true and its hand just and strong."

The meeting afterwards passed a resolution expressing unqualified confidence in Mr. Churchill by a unanimous vote.

Lord Burnham's View.

London, Feb. 24.
A seditious fakir, striding half-naked up the Viceregal steps, said Mr. Churchill of Gandhi last night.

Later, Lord Burnham, a member of the Simon Commission, speaking at Salisbury, described the Indian Congress leader as "a crafty, half-crazy old fanatic."

Lord Burnham added that for a long period of time as they are doing, is doing a great injury to the name and fame of Great Britain in the East and consequently to the whole fabric of Western civilization.—Reuter.

SHOOTING AFFAIR TRIAL OPENS.

MRS. XAVIER APPEARS IN THE DOCK.

SEVERAL SPECTATORS AT THE SESSIONS.

THE CROWN'S CASE.

A great deal of public interest is being manifested in the trial of Mrs. Jesuina Maria Xavier at the Criminal Sessions, on three counts relating to the shooting incident at Wanchai on December 27, 1930, when Mr. Alfred Joseph Manton was wounded in three places from bullets alleged to have been fired at him by accused. The case was commenced this morning before Mr. Justice Wood and a jury, in the presence of a number of spectators.

There are three counts against accused. The first is that she wounded Mr. Manton with intent to murder him. The second is that she unlawfully and maliciously shot at and wounded him with intent to maim, disfigure, or disable him, or to do some other grievous bodily harm. Thirdly, she is charged with unlawfully and maliciously wounding Mr. Manton.

"Not Guilty" Plea.

Accused pleaded not guilty to all three counts.

Mr. Somerset Fitzroy is prosecuting for the Crown, and Mr. Leo D'Almada, junior, instructed by Mr. P. M. Hodgson, of Messrs. T'ao and Hodgson, is defending.

Detailing the history of the case, Mr. Fitzroy said that for about six years previous to the incident, Manton and accused had been living together as man and wife, but they had come to the parting of the ways. There had been a certain amount of trouble and they were separating from one another permanently.

Revolver Taken.

On the morning of December 27, at about half past ten, accused went on a visit to her sister living in Kowloon. Her sister's husband had a licence to keep a revolver, which was loaded and kept locked up in a drawer. During the visit accused was left alone in the house for a short while, and when the sister returned she found that accused had left. At about half past one she received a note from accused, saying that she had taken the revolver, and on going to the drawer where the revolver was kept, accused's sister found the key in the lock and the revolver gone.

Mr. Fitzroy commented that the Crown would say accused deliberately took the revolver for some purpose.

He went on to say that Manton returned home at 12.55 p.m. and, after a short conversation with accused, sat down to have dinner. He had been sitting down for a few minutes when he heard two shots but did not take much notice of them as, although it was subsequently discovered that both had hit him, he did not know it at the time. A third shot was then fired and a bullet struck him in the arm.

Revolver in Hand.

He immediately jumped up and discovered accused behind him holding the revolver in her hand.

He took the weapon from her, but in doing so it broke, the half-ejector operated, and the cartridges were thrown on to the floor. It was discovered that there were three empty cases and two live bullets, the revolver being of the 5-chamber type.

Mr. Fitzroy proceeded that both Manton and accused went to the Police Station, after which Manton went to hospital. It was found that one bullet had passed through his arm, one had gone through near the left shoulder blade, while another had hit close to the same spot and had travelled about four inches under the skin.

Might Have Been Fatal.

Medical evidence would show that one of them might easily have proved fatal and it was fortunate, said Mr. Fitzroy, that accused was not charged with murder.

Council explained that the ammunition in the revolver was "dead," being ammunition which had, apparently, (Continued on Page 12.)

MR. LANG GOES OFF THE DEEP END.

BITTER ANTI-ENGLAND
SPEECH.

FINANCIAL MASTERS.

Sydney, Feb. 23.

The Labour Premier of New South Wales, Mr. Lang, made a slashing attack to-day on "Australia's financial masters," when addressing an enthusiastic meeting in support of the Labour candidate at the East Sydney Federal bye-election.

"Fourteen years ago," he said, "overseas interests, by conscription through the Australian Government, attempted to take her sons to give their lives on the battlefields."

"To-day, these self-same interests, working in the same channels, want to take the bread from the mouths of the sons and daughters of Australia to satisfy their insatiable greed."

"The New South Wales Labour movement dissociates itself from the proceedings between the Premiers' Conference and the Banks and the latter's conditions of help, namely, the suspension of social services and a reduction of pensions and wages."

Mr. Lang outlined the New South Wales plan to help Australia, namely, a withholding of the payment of interest on overseas debts on the ground that Australia's indebtedness is a result of her efforts to help England during the war, and secondly, an alteration of the currency system substituting a "goods standard" for the gold standard.—Reuter.

EUROPE ECONOMIC UNION.

FIRST MOVE IN BRIAND'S SCHEME.

Paris, Feb. 24.

What M. Briand described as the first tangible result of the movement for a European Federation was initiated to-day with the opening at the Quai d'Orsay of an Agricultural Conference attended by representatives of twenty-four European States, for the purpose of considering the problem of Europe's cereal export surpluses.

M. Briand, in welcoming the delegates, declared that the moment had come to put European solidarity to the test. What was really at stake was not the question of the distribution of the cereal surplus, but the maintenance of peace.—Reuter.

A ROCKFELLER OFFER.

TWO MILLIONS FOR A HOSPITAL.

(Our Own Correspondent.)

Shanghai, Feb. 24.

It is reported to-day that Mr. John D. Rockefeller has offered two million dollars as half of a fund of four million dollars, for the construction and endowment of a Chinese hospital on the Pioneer Sports Field tract in the Rue Pere Frec.

The plan calls for the raising of half the fund in China before the Rockefeller donation is forthcoming.

HSIN MING PIRACY SEQUEL.

REPORTED ARREST OF ANOTHER SUSPECT.

Canton, Feb. 23.

It is reported here that a further arrest has been made in connection with the Hsin Ming piracy. Canton detectives working in conjunction with the Hongkong police, have carried out a raid at Changchow which resulted in the apprehension of a suspect named Chan King-yuan who has been brought here for trial.—Our Own Correspondent.

PHENOMENAL BRITISH LOSS OF TRADE.

STRIKING LOCAL ANALYSIS.

JAPAN'S CAPTURE OF THE PIECE-GOODS TRADE.

THE PRICE FACTOR.

Prefacing its monthly report on the trade of the Colony for January, 1931, the Statistical Branch of the Imports and Exports Department calls attention to the huge falling-off in the exports of British cotton piece goods to the China market as one of the main problems which is being investigated by the British Economic Mission, and proceeds to analyse the figures of the imports of British and Japanese cotton piece goods into Hongkong during the years 1930 and 1924.

The report says it is not within its province to assign reasons for the phenomenal losses sustained by British manufacturers in the Hongkong market, but the self-explanatory table below will show at first sight that while Japan's share of the trade in 1930, allowing for the three unrecorded months (January to March inclusive) approximated that of 1924, the British figure fell by over 22,500,000.

United Kingdom 23,000,940 £281,239
Japan 15,897,295 £1,948,624
Total all countries 38,898,235 £2,229,863

H.K.S. 1924=2s. 4d.; 1930=1s. 8d.

Positions Reversed.

In 1924, Great Britain recorded 55.59% of the total imports of cotton piece goods into Hongkong, while the Japanese proportion amounted to 33.05%. The position was reversed in 1930, when the Japanese share reached 60.47% and the British share fell to 34.17%.

Cotton piece goods prices fell considerably in 1930 as compared with 1924 and, taking this factor into consideration, it would be reasonable to assume that the total volume of cotton piece goods entering Hongkong from Japan in 1930 was approximately to, if not in excess of, the volume imported in the boom year 1924.

Japan Leads in All Lines.

From the following comparative table of the chief items of cotton piece goods imported from the United Kingdom and Japan during the nine months April-December, 1930, it will be noted that in practically every line the quantities imported from Japan were far greater than those from the United Kingdom. For the purpose of easy comparison (and the price factor can be noted) the Japanese figures are given in brackets.

JURY'S DECISION IN PIRACY TRIAL.

CASE TO GO BEFORE FULL COURT.

The twelve alleged pirates were all found guilty by the unanimous verdict of the jury, after a deliberation of 15 minutes, at the Criminal Sessions yesterday, before Mr. Justice Wood, who expressed his agreement with the verdict. His Lordship committed accused to prison and postponed sentence, pending the decision of the Full Court as to the legal point reserved, i.e. whether an accused person may be convicted of piracy in circumstances where no robbery has occurred.

No evidence was called for the defence, and in summing up, his Lordship remarked it was the first case of its kind that had come before a British Court according to the authorities, as in all other cases there had been robbery, whereas in the present case, nothing had been stolen.

Questions for Jurors.

For the guidance of the jurors, his Lordship provided them with copies of the following seven questions, explaining that he did not wish them to answer the questions in Court, but to consider them in arriving at their verdict.

The questions were as follows:

1. Were any of the accused voluntarily engaged in a common enterprise on the occasion in question?
2. If so, which were they?
3. Were any of the accused carrying firearms?
4. Was a shot fired by any of the accused?
5. If any shot was fired, was it possible for a bullet to have struck the master or crew of the junk 206V?
6. Did those of the accused who may have been found to have been engaged in a common enterprise, continue in the enterprise after a shot was fired?
7. Was the main enterprise an intended robbery?

There was a footnote to the questions as follows. Any accused persons indicated "in answer to question No. 2 should be convicted if the answers to questions 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7, are "yes."

If the answer to any of these questions is "no," all the accused persons should be acquitted.

Evidence as to Arms.

His Lordship reminded the jury that although nothing of an incriminating nature was found on the pirate junk, they had to consider the evidence of complainants who had stated that they heard shots fired and bullets whistle overhead, while the officers of the s.s. Hangsang had said they saw articles thrown from the junk. In that connexion the accused had not been called to give evidence.

After the jury's verdict had been delivered, his Lordship told accused that the Full Court would decide whether to confirm the finding of the jury as to whether they would be committed to prison, and sentence and judgment would be postponed until the decision of the Full Court was known.

Defence Submission.

In conducting his defence earlier in the day, Mr. Hin-Shing Lo said that he would not call any evidence, but submitted that there was no case to answer as there was no evidence of assault, no evidence of the possession of arms, and that it was essential to prove that a robbery had been completed.

His Honour disagreed, and considered that there was enough evidence on the first two points for the case to go to the jury. He reserved his ruling on the third point.

FIRST HOUSE AT KOWLOON.

ROSE TERRACE TO BE DEMOLISHED.

A link with the early history of Kowloon is being severed with the demolition of Rose Terrace, the ancient yellow two-storied block that has weathered typhoons and monsoons, at the southern end of Nathan Road, for more than 40 years. The old building known more of Kowloon than the present generation, for it was the first brick structure that was erected on the Kowloon side of the harbour.

Interesting tales and reminiscences surrounding the building of Rose Terrace. To-day it is a couple of hundred yards from the sea-wall, but in the late eighties, when it was built, the harbour lapped up against its foundations. Extensive reclamation has altered the sea shore in that vicinity and provided the soil on which the palatial Peninsula Hotel, Y. M. C. A., Alfred Holt's Godowns, the Post Office and other buildings now stand.

To Mr. Mathias Azevedo, one of the earliest Portuguese settlers, goes the credit of having been responsible for the construction of Rose Terrace. Mr. Azevedo did for Kowloon what Mr. Delfino Noronha did for Yau-mai several years later. In those days, the reclamation of Tsimshatsui Bay had not been considered, and the whole of British Kowloon Peninsula was practically given over to Chinese farmers and was all paddyfields. Tsimshatsui Bay was a crescent-shaped inlet between the bamboo police pier, where the Star Ferry wharf now is, and Blackhead's Point, at the site of the present Holt's wharves.

$25 an Acre.

The sandy shores of the bay were fringed with thatched bungalows, which were used as weekend residences in the same way as similar sheds are employed at Castle Peak and other localities to-day. These thatched bungalows were built on single-acre lots, which the Government had sold for $25 each. Among those who acquired these matches were Mr. Azevedo, Mr. Joao M. A. da Silva, Mr. Chagas and Mr. Ribeiro, all of whom, with the exception of Mr. Azevedo, were employed in the Government service. Mr. da Silva was audit clerk and the first Government electrician in the Colony.

Mr. Azevedo was chief clerk to Brereton and Wootton, the firm of legal practitioners, which some years later was joined by Mr. Victor H. Deacon and is now the well-known Deacon's.

Mr. Azevedo soon perceived the possibilities ahead of Kowloon, and it was due to his courage in remaining there in spite of the prolonged malarial attacks from which neither he nor his family escaped, that he succeeded in erecting Rose Terrace. He named it after his wife's Christian name Rosa, and his family took up their residence there, while he cultivated a small flower and vegetable garden nearby.

Tsimshatsui Reclamation.

About this time, application was made for the sale by public auction of Tsimshatsui Bay, which was then a shallow crescent of practically no commercial value. There was keen competition for the site, which was secured by a private syndicate, and the bay was reclaimed, and Mr. Azevedo's original "farm lot" became an "inland lot." It is more than possible that Mr. Azevedo could see this in the future. From this reclamation dates the beginning of Kowloon's intensive development into Hongkong's chief suburban district and the centre of its shipping activity.

Rose Terrace then looked on vastly different scenes to what it does now. Behind it rose the hills on which are now constructed Knutsford Terrace and other residential apartments. These hills were used as a ground for military exercises. Nathan Road was only a narrow pathway, but later made a 100 foot thoroughfare by Sir Matthew Nathan, Governor, who planned it to be the main trunk road connecting the Colony with Canton. There was no Yau-mai or Mongkok then, and the border ran through where Shamshui now is. Homantin was known as a name to only a few foreigners, and the whole locality was visited only by sportsmen in search of snipe and pigeons.

Mr. Azevedo continued to live in Rose Terrace for many years, leaving vacant space to other Portuguese. There was no idea in those days of giving the ground floor over to shops; that alteration was made several years later. When he died Mr. Azevedo bequeathed the property to his family, and eventually it was secured by Chinese interests.

Modern Flats Planned.

Now Rose Terrace is to be replaced by a modern up-to-date block of flats that will be in keeping with the other buildings in the locality. Of four stories, the ground level of the new structure will be comprised of three shops, and there will be four apartments on each of the other three floors. The flats will be modelled on the usual style of European houses—two big rooms joined by a wide door, a smaller room, pantry, kitchen, servant's quarters, and bathroom. It will be finished with grey Shanghai plaster, and verandahs on the three floors will face Nathan Road.

Plans have not yet been passed by the Government, and although the demolition of old Rose Terrace will be completed within a week, construction of the new building will not be started for some weeks. The block is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

The architect for the new block is Mr. M. A. Xavier.

THE ON LEE STILL AGROUND.

SANNING ALSO REPORTED ASHORE.

Incoming vessels from Kowloon last night report that the s.s. On Lee was still aground near Wangmoon yesterday. The vessel lies slightly away from the usual track of steamers and therefore does not cause any obstruction to other vessels plying on the river.

The Tai Lee, it will be recalled, left Hongkong earlier than usual on Sunday evening to take off the passengers from the On Lee. There were approximately 200 on board.

It is reported that the s.s. Sanning, on the Hongkong-Wuchow run, is aground on the Kowloon River. She has been fast for the last few days.

BROPHY SAILS FOR SHANGHAI.

RETURNING FOR FLIGHT LATER.

Mr. G. W. Brophy, of the L. E. Gale Aviation Company, left for Shanghai this morning on business, but this is no indication that he has abandoned his flight to Manila.

Bad weather, which delayed his "hop" last week, continues to prevail, and until conditions improve, Mr. Brophy is unable to take the flight.

It is expected that he will return to Hongkong as soon as the weather shows signs of improvement, and will then make his effort to complete the final stage of his long-distance flight.

FOREIGN CLOTH IN INDIA.

GANDHI SUGGESTS MEANS OF ITS SUPPRESSION.

Ahmedabad, Feb. 23.
The boycott of foreign cloth is the greatest problem before India,
according to the latest pronouncement
of Gandhi.

Writing in Narajan, his vernacular weekly paper, Gandhi appeals to millowners to take foreign cloth from the merchant and give them cloth woven in their mills in exchange. He suggests that the mill-owners might dispose of the foreign cloth in foreign countries, burn it, or keep it until it is worn out, when they can ask the new Government to compensate them for any loss.

sleeves seen recently on a

WOMEN'S WORLD

FOR OUR LADY READERS.

DANCING TO THE GRAMOPHONE.

A dozen couples dancing on the floor of a medium-sized room produce so much noise with the murmur of their voices, the rustle of frocks, and the swish of feet that a gramophone which seems loud enough when playing to a group of fireside listeners seems very subdued and dull when an interval of dancing in the home circle is desired.

Here are some tested hints that will help to overcome the difficulty: Set the gramophone as high as possible, preferably with the aperture level with the dancers' head. The sound from a gramophone set low is not only less able to fill the whole room, but it is often almost blotted out by dancers who pass in front of it.

Set it in the middle of one of the two longer walls and about four inches away from it. The close wall will act as a sound board, and reflect, and sometimes even amplify the volume of music. Above all, else, avoid a background of curtains or other draperies; they absorb sound rather than reflect it.

The worst place to set the gramophone is in the middle of the room. If set low, the sound is shut in by the dancers; if set high, the music passes over their heads.

If wireless is installed in the house, electrical reproduction of the dance music may be possible, and will yield great clarity of tone and volume of sound; if not, the use of loud tone needles and a careful selection of records is called for.

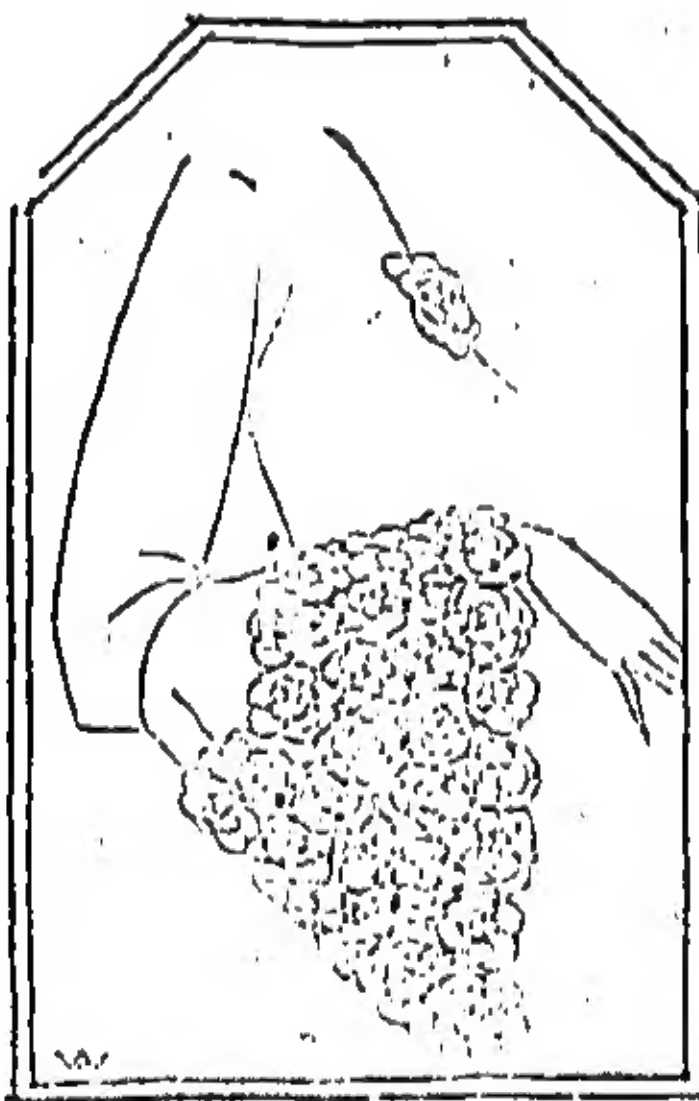

Besides choosing a record that is reasonably loud, select one that has the right tempo. This must not be confused with rhythm; it is simply the number of bars of music to the minute. It is important to choose dance records of the right tempo, for the latter cannot be altered by increasing the speed of rotation of the record.

At present dance records do not have the tempo marked on them, so that a preliminary test with the record and a watch is useful if fairly even dancing speeds are to be maintained through the evening.

For slow fox-trots, dance experts recommend 44 to 48 bars of sonorous time per minute; this tempo rising to 48 to 54 for fast fox-trots and Charleston. Yala blues need only 32 to 36 bars a minute, and for waltzes 34 to 38 bars of three-quarter time per minute is most satisfactory.

Rich Fabrics Used in Pyjamas.

YOUR CHILDREN.

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

None of us behave normally under high pressure. We can go through an upset day quite coolly and calmly, proud of our ability to rise above trying circumstances, but in some way, often quite unnoticed by ourselves, we show signs of the strain.

Control does not always mean calmness.

Children have not learned this lesson of control as we have, and quickly show signs of tension. The strain may not be an unhappy one, but no matter what the cause of it, few children can weather many days of chaos without some sort of storm.

The way such nerve storms have of breaking depends on the nature of the child. An unhappy child by nature may go into spells of crying or melancholy. For that matter even a happy child, upset by continued deviation of routine, also may cry suddenly or become ill and lose his meals. Another type of child may suddenly fly off at a tangent and have a temper tantrum, and the motor type who is merely healthily mischievous may now go to extremes in his experiments that he would not think of doing under normal circumstances.

Nerves Must React.
When children are out of school, with the regular routine of their days upset, and the emotional strain of the holidays is on, it would be very unusual if they behaved normally for an unlimited period.

A mother now may be puzzled by demonstrations of conduct absolutely out of the ordinary. But she must remember that nerves are physical things, not pious strings, and their protest is altogether likely to take a form she is entirely unfamiliar with.

A wise mother will not take too much notice of any temperamental shortcomings among the children during the holidays. She will say to herself, "It is only temporary," and not be too seriously concerned because her children have developed all sorts of odd forms of behaviour.

But at the same time she might look into conditions a little. Is the house itself demoralized? Are the hours the same? The meals on time? Are the nerves and tempers of the older members of the family all they should be? Nothing is more apt to affect children than the emotions and behaviour of their elders.

There can be happiness without confusion. And if the children are causing alarm by topsy-turvy behaviour, a little readjustment higher up might help a lot.

STOCKINGS.

We can wear cheap stockings or expensive stockings to-day, and if we consider colour, be ultrachic in either. The flesh glare and yellow shine that draped our legs in past seasons, are completely out-of-date. They increase the size of the ankle, and who could cultivate slenderness in them? Our hose is now coloured and designed to suit the seasons.

The new shades are darker than ever, more beautiful, consequently. Browns, especially those of the tiger family, rule the roost. Then, there is a shade of light reddish-brown that suits the subtle curves of feminine calves, and heightens the graceful, slim silhouette.

A new tint is the oak tint of the genuine autumn landscape glow. There is a new brown, the brown of the earth, and a shade of twist brown and amber, and a pinkish brown concludes the list.

The above face of a grandfather's clock has letters instead of numbers on it. Start counting at the proper point and count a certain number around the circle, clockwise, and check off the letter. Continue doing this around and around the clock, checking off a letter at the same interval each time, until you have checked off the 11 letters. Then, if you have picked the right starting point and the right interval, you will have spelled out an appropriate word.

CONFUSION WORSE CONFOUNDED.

Instead of becoming clarified, the political situation at home is fast developing into confusion. An examination of the facts makes it abundantly clear that all three Parties are split from within into opposing factions. Until the East Hingling bye-election, we had thought that the controversy between Mr. Baldwin and the Press Barons had been terminated, with the Conservative leader prepared to swallow full-blooded Protection. It is now evident that this is not so. In these circumstances, there would appear to be every probability of the Conservative vote being hopelessly split in the event of a General Election occurring in the near future. As to the Liberals, apart from their failure to making anything of a showing in recent bye-elections, we have the outstanding fact that the Party is divided against itself. There are some of its members who lose no opportunity to vote against Labour; notably Sir John Simon; others, headed by Mr. Runciman, who are definitely pro-Labour; whilst the remainder do as they are told by Mr. Lloyd George. Inside the Labour Party there are warring factions, but, thanks to the large measure of support which it can count on from the Liberals, the Government appears to stand in no immediate danger of being ejected. We are assuming, of course, that the revolt of the Mosley faction, of which news came to hand yesterday, is not quite so serious as is believed in some quarters. Obviously, however, we shall have to await the developments of the next few weeks to determine this point.

More than ordinary interest attaches to the attitude of Sir Oswald Mosley and his followers because he has latterly been a strong critic of the Government's unemployment policy. We all know that he resigned his Ministerial post last year because he was impatient at Labour's attitude on this particular question. The burden of his complaint was that no effective machine existed for dealing with unemployment on the scale now being experienced at home. His idea was the creation of "a central organisation armed with an adequate research and economic advisory department on the one hand, linked to an executive machine composed of twelve higher officials on the other, operating under the direct control of the Prime Minister and the head of the Civil Service himself, and driving out from that central organisation the energy and initiative of the Government through every Department which had to deal with the problem." The remainder of his scheme was based on this foundation. Since the proposals were put forward, they have met with very considerable criticism, in I.L.P. circles as well as from the Liberals; and they certainly would not appear to bear very close analysis. Indeed, there is already in existence an Economic Advisory Council, within whose purview the unemployment problem would naturally fall. Moreover, there is strong objection in many quarters to anything in the nature of reforms which smack of a dictatorship.

The fact has been faced, however, that Sir Oswald Mosley represents a very considerable bulk of Labour opinion which inclines to the view that the Government has signally failed to grapple with the biggest domestic issue with which the country has ever been faced. His personality, also, has won for him a large measure of support from Labourites who think that the official Labour Party is becoming indistinguishable from Liberalism. These restless spirits want more of "Socialism in our time." It remains to be seen to what extent this feeling permeates the Labour Party. In the meantime, we can only wait and watch. But if the MacDonald Administration wants to retain its position, it seems evident that some concession will have to be made to those of its erstwhile followers who are beginning to believe that Labour has not lived up to its promises.

League Gold Report.

Exceedingly important recommendations for improving the world distribution of existing gold supplies are contained in the report just submitted to the League of Nations by the special branch of the finance committee which has been making a study of the problem. Relaxation is urged in the drastic rules which now prevent monetary authorities from changing their credit policy to remedy peculiar circumstances, especially in the direction of reducing the existing minima of gold legally required in the reserves of central banks. The necessity of closer collaboration between central banks is stressed, though curiously enough, no mention is made of the Bank of International Settlements at Basel which is already stimulating such co-operation. The committee expresses confidence that the application of the methods they suggest for improving distribution would improve the present economic situation, though it must be obvious that public confidence is by far the most important element in influencing the steady flow of capital and credit to needy countries. The weakness of the report from the viewpoint of value is that it does not deal directly with the glut which has been most manifest in France and the United States, but refers rather to long-time distribution, and it is to be hoped that eventually the committee, which is still sitting, will publish a further instalment dealing more directly with current problems. A practical analysis of the present crisis, its causes and the means of remedy, would stand a far greater chance of endorsement and, consequently, performance.

For and Against the United States of Europe.

By Sisley Huddleston.

ONCE more at Geneva the possibility of some form of European federation has been discussed; and this time it appears that in some respects a more practical shape has been given to debates which hitherto have been somewhat nebulous.
It is opportune, therefore, to set out impartially the arguments on both sides of the proposal sponsored by Aristide Briand.

Against.

1. While it would have been progressive a few years ago to think in terms of continents, it is now retrogressive; for both in theory and in practice the world is being organized on a larger basis. There are European countries that have their chief interest outside Europe, and indeed most European countries would feel themselves cramped if they adopted a purely continued conception of their relations with other countries.

2. A European federation, rightly or wrongly, seems to postulate a certain opposition to extra-European countries. Doubtless this opposition does not exist in the thought of the promoters of the idea, but there is a danger that it would develop in this thought of the peoples who are already too inclined to contrast Europe with America.

3. What is Europe? It is a hodgepodge of vastly different nations, and no section of Europe can arrogate to itself the right of excluding another section. Thus France cannot assert it is more European than Russia, or deny to Russia a European status. The case of Russia is particularly striking. It is a country which is three times as large as the leading European nations, and yet there is a reluctance to count it in. Nor is this reluctance, on political and social grounds, unreasonable.
Russia does not in the least resemble other European countries,
and no other European country
wishes to resemble Russia.

4. Does not the notion of federation rule out the notion of revision of the treaties? In revisionist countries it is said that a federation can be built only on foundations of justice; that before there can be unity there must be agreement on all the questions that still perplex Europe. But this opens up grave problems, and it is replied, in the countries that favour the status quo, that on the contrary frontiers will not matter inside the federation, and that the best solution is to leave things as they are inside that federation.
Which is precisely what the revisionists fear.

5. The political establishment of a federation would create jeal-ousies and intrigues; this or that nation might endeavour to take the leadership of Europe. Inside the federation these attempts at hegemony would result in sharp divisions, alliances and counter-alliances, and the last state might be worse than the first.

6. The economic establishment of such a federation presents uncommon difficulties. So far there has been no disposition shown to reduce tariffs, much less to abolish them, between European nations.

The agricultural countries have different interests from those of the industrial countries. In so far as finance, industry and commerce have become international in scope, they have not waited for the lead of the governments, but have formed their cartels and extended their influence. In some cases in opposition to the political desires of the various governments. They might be hindered rather than helped by governmental control.

7. The League of Nations already exists and is devoting its attention precisely to the problems with which the federation would deal. But it is not European; it is quasi-universal. Non-European help is needed to solve European problems. Not only would the federation be less likely to succeed than the League, but even though it came nominally under the auspices of the League
it would tend to replace the League, to weaken the authority of the League, to substitute the European idea for the universal idea, the solidarity of certain nations for the interdependence of all.

These are the principal objections. There are others, but it is particularly necessary to face these. No good purpose is served by conjuring them away, by refusing to state them clearly and forcibly; but there are, of course,
replies which should be stated
with equal clearness.

For.

1. European combinations, political or economic, need not be exclusive. Two nations such as France and Germany, for example, which have complementary interests and which agree to exchange coal for iron ore, do not therefore cut themselves off from other continents. For some purposes we may think in terms of towns, for other purposes of countries, and for yet other purposes of continents; but that need not prevent us from thinking in terms of world solidarity.

2. The so-called opposition of a European federation to extra-European countries is purely imaginary. It may, or it may not, develop; that would depend on the policy of the promoters. Those promoters deny antagonism and in point of fact Europe is linked to America in a hundred different ways. The Pan-American Union is certainly not anti-European.
Why postulate the anti-Americanism of a European federation?

3. It is possible that a European federation would not include all the countries of Europe. It is possible that in present circumstances it would be undesirable to admit Russia. But this is merely quibbling about a name. Perhaps European federation would be a misnomer. Nevertheless, it is a convenient expression. If it is seriously felt to be inexact, it would be easy to find another title.

4. Certainly it would be preferable to have a Europe in which there were no national differences of opinion and in which the treaties were such as could be accepted by everybody. But if revision of treaties is made a preliminary question, federation will be relegated to the Greek kalends. It is because in present circumstances grievances are actually felt that it is advisable to agree first about the general framework of Europe and to make readjustments afterwards. This problem of readjustments should not be preliminary to federation;
but neither should it be ruled out
by federation.

5. Jealousies and intrigues there are now; but surely they would be of less importance in the state of good will which is a necessary condition of national equality in European union.

6. The economic difficulties would tend to disappear if there were political accord. The real reason for the non-success of recent economic negotiations is precisely the distrust which prevails. Yet despite this distrust countries with common interests are indeed uniting; and the internationalization of finance, industry, and commerce is an acknowledged and significant fact which deserves the encouragement of the various governments.

7. The danger to the League is theoretical. Most of the nations have signified their desire to work within the League; and there is nothing in the idea of universality which can possibly forbid additional arrangements. According to the argument of ultra-zealous supporters of the League, France and Italy, for example, should not compose their differences by bilateral methods. That is an absurdity which nobody would sponsor. But if two nations are

ESTATE COMPANY MEETING.

RECENT CAPITAL INCREASE EXPLAINED.

DIVIDEND ASSURED.

A bank overdraft of approximately a lakh and a half, was stated this morning by Mr. Henry Humphreys, to be the chief reason which prompted the Humphreys Estate and Finance Co., Ltd., to increase its capital last December. He referred to this in his speech from the chair, when presiding at the annual meeting of the company held in the Hongkong Hotel, and also stated that, apart from that factor, the Directors considered the time opportune to take advantage of the money market, adding that they did not anticipate any difficulty in maintaining the usual dividend of 8 per cent. on the increased capital.

The Directors present supporting the Chairman were:—The Hon. Mr. C. G. Mackie, Mr. J. H. Harston, Mr. J. H. Taggart, and Mr. J. M. Alves, together with Mr. J. L. Quile (Secretary). Shareholders present were Messrs. C. Bernard Brown, Frank Austin, J. D. Humphreys and D. E. Clark.

Chairman's Address.

In proposing the adoption of the report and accounts, Mr. Humphreys said:—Gentlemen, With your permission I propose to follow the usual procedure and take the Report and Accounts as read. The profit is some $19,000 better than last year, but nearly $14,000 of this is accounted for by appropriating the balance at credit of reserve for share defalcations after paying for all expenses and satisfying all claims. I may mention here that we now have a half yearly audit of the share register and transfers, which accounts for the increase of $400 under the heading of Auditors' fees.

Turning to the balance sheet, the amount invested in land and buildings has increased by $29,875.31, representing further expenditure on the four new flats and ten garages at May Road. On the liabilities side, Special Repairs and Renewals Account has been reduced by $6,011.20. We propose transferring $10,786.15 to this Account, bringing it up to $20,000.

Reason For Capital Increase.

You will notice that the overdraft with bankers is approximately a lakh and a half more than last year, and this was one factor that prompted your Directors to call an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders on 29th December last to sanction an increase in capital. The capital of the Company was last increased as long ago as 1901, and you will, no doubt, have observed that against our capital of a million and a half, we have two million seven hundred thousand invested in property.

Apart from this, your Directors considered the time opportune to take advantage of the money market, and we do not anticipate any difficulty in maintaining the usual dividend of 8% on the increased capital, which will rank for dividend as from 1st May 1931.

Rent Account.

Rent Account has only increased by $9,056.59, but it has to be borne in mind that our new flats, on May Road, were only revenue-producing from 1st July last. I do not think there is anything further that calls for comment. I now beg to propose that the sum of $193,591.55 available for appropriation be allocated as follows:—Pay a dividend of 80 cents per share, $120,000; transfer to Special Repairs and Renewals A/c, $10,786.15; transfer to a Building Improvement A/c, $15,000; carry forward to new Profit and Loss A/c, $47,774.59.

After the accounts have been seconded, I shall be pleased to answer any questions shareholders may wish to put.

Mr. Frank Austin seconded, and the report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

Messrs. J. M. Alves, C. Gordon Mackie and J. H. Taggart were elected to the Directorate on the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Mr. C. Bernard Brown, and the auditors, Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming, and Messrs. Linstead and Davis, were re-appointed on the proposition of Mr. J. D. Humphreys seconded by Mr. D. E. Clark.

FINER WEATHER.

The Royal Observatory states that the anticyclone has strengthened and is now central to the north of the lower Yangtze Valley. Strong monsoon along the S.E. coast of China and strong to fresh monsoon over the N. China Sea.

The local forecast till noon tomorrow is:—North-east winds, fresh; overcast at first, finer later.

WOMAN "WANTED" IN AMERICA.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT OF BIG SUM.

EXTRADITION CASE.

Embezzlement of $25,000 (Gold) was alleged against a married Chinese woman, Jang Shee, formerly of California, who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning; it being stated that she had been guilty of the commission of an offence in the jurisdiction of California, from which place requisition was made for her extradition.

Mr. T. Murphy (Assistant Director of Criminal Intelligence) appeared for the police and asked for a remand for 48 hours in police custody. He remarked that he would not offer any evidence at this stage unless his Worship wished to hear the evidence of arrest. The fugitive was arrested on board a ship in the Harbour yesterday by virtue of a provisional warrant.

It was possible, continued the prosecuting officer, that the fugitive would waive extradition proceedings and go back to the United States of her own accord.

His Worship said he would take evidence of arrest after the remand. Mr. Murphy remarked that if the fugitive waived extradition proceedings, the police would ask for a provisional remand, pending the departure of a steamer for California. Her discharge would then be asked for.

The fugitive was remanded in police custody for 48 hours.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Christian Science.

[To The Editor of Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir, In an article in Saturday's issue, entitled "Clergy and Faith Healing," reference was made to Christian Science which contained untrue statements regarding it and I respectfully request your permission to correct them.

The Rev. T. F. Monahan is reported as having said that he does not suppose there is any more fantastic theory than that on which Christian Science is founded—the theory that matter and the body do not exist and that therefore pain cannot exist.

Christian Science is founded on such facts as that God, good, is the only creator; that He created all things, including man, good; that since He is omniscient, omnipotent and omnipresent, His creations never have been and never can be other than good; that matter and its concomitants, sin and sickness, have no connection with God and His creation and have, therefore, no more real an existence than has a nightmare, except to those of us who fail to recognise the allness and the ever-present goodness of God and of His creation, the realization of which is the Christian Scientific healing agent.

Christian Science does not teach that the body does not exist. In 1 Cor. 7: 19, is found the Christian Science attitude with regard to this: "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" The material concept of body is certainly not the temple of the Holy Spirit, of God; it is not the reality concerning body, and it is not accepted as such by Christian Scientists.

The success of Christian Science healing, which Rev. Mr. Monahan acknowledges, is not due to faith only, but to a clear understanding of what God is and of what man is in His image and likeness, which understanding is gained through intelligent and enlightened study of the Scriptures. The power of Spiritual healing is available to all. Christian Scientists are happy to see that the clergy of the Church of England are striving to gain it and to incorporate it in their ministrations, where it rightfully belongs, and we certainly wish them success.—Yours, etc.

January Figures.

Imports of merchandise during the month of January recorded a small increase as compared with December, while exports receded slightly. The figures are given hereunder, the December totals being given in brackets:

Imports.—Merchandise, $59,669,025 ($59,110,160); treasure, $5,263,164 ($4,883,548); total, $64,932,189 ($63,993,708).

Exports.—Merchandise, $47,973,829 ($48,509,929); treasure, $10,845,988 ($9,563,845); total, $58,819,817 ($58,073,774).

The total imports from the United Kingdom amounted to $7,831,343 as compared with $4,574,463 in December, the British share of the whole import trade representing 13.15% as compared with 7.74% in December, 8.22% in November and 13% in 1924.

Exports to the United Kingdom total $441,865 as compared with $381,887, the percentage figure being .92% as compared with .79% in December 1924, in November and 1.2% in 1924.

FOR &amp; AGAINST THE U.S. OF EUROPE.

permitted to make private agreements on matters that particularly concern them, why not twenty? In so far as Europe has its regional problems they can, perhaps, best be solved by regional commissions—or federations—and these solutions, so far from injuring the League, will relieve it and strengthen it.

So may the arguments for and against a European federation be put in simple language. It is for the European nations themselves to weigh the advantages and disadvantages. A real federation cannot be established immediately; but anything which promotes a consciousness of even partial solidarity should, whether it receive practical expression or not, ultimately forward the conception of universal solidarity.

BOMB MYSTERY ON RAILWAY.

PASSENGER KILLED AND OTHERS INJURED.

Peking, Feb. 23.

A mysterious bomb incident, resulting in one passenger being killed and three other passengers, and a railway guard being injured, occurred on the Peking-Mukden Railway, at Tongshan Station, yesterday afternoon.

On the arrival of the train from Mukden, several third-class passengers were seen forcing their way through to the entrance gate when suddenly an explosion occurred from the luggage of one of the passengers.

The man who was conveying the luggage was killed outright.

CHINA'S WAR ON CORRUPTION.

CONTROL YUAN FORMALLY INAUGURATED.

CLEAN GOVERNMENT.

Nanking, Feb. 23.

Considered to be of importance from the Kuomintang point of view is the formal inauguration of the Nanking Control or Censor Yuan, marking the establishment of the last of the Five Yuans, the others being the Executive Yuan, Legislative Yuan, Judicial Yuan and Examination Yuan.

President Chiang Kai-shek presided and Dr. Wang Chung-hui, head of the Judicial Yuan, officiated at the ceremony when members of the Executive Committee at the new Control Yuan, together with members of the newly-formed Anti-Opium Commission, took their oaths of office.

The newly-elected assistant Minister of War, Commander Chan Yee, and Minister of Industry, Mr. Cheng Hsing-nie, were formally installed to their respective offices at the same meeting.

Dr. Wang stressed the need for the establishment of a clean Government, adding that the establishment of the Control Yuan was to prevent official corruption.

President Chiang commented on the functioning of the five Yuans, remarking that the establishment of the last of the five Yuans was indeed a triumph for the doctrines of the late Kuomintang founder, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, and the completion of an important part of the revolutionary programme.

The President urged the Government in the provinces to give sincere co-operation to the Anti-Opium Commission officials in their coming campaign to wipe out the opium evil in China.

President Chiang said in that future all cases pertaining to official corruption would be examined personally by Mr. Yu Yu-jen, Chairman of the Control Yuan, and a commission comprising a few chosen members of the Executive Committee.

MACAO WEEK BY WEEK.

INTEREST IN GREYHOUND RACING.

Macao, Feb. 22.

The week just passed has been a hectic one, for the rare occurrence of the celebration of the Carnival, one of the most popular of feasts among Latin peoples, at the same time as the Chinese New Year holidays, turned all Macao, for practically a whole week, into a scene of celebrations. The weather was damp and cold, but it did not deter the holiday crowd from taking part in all the enjoyment.

The Carnival festivities were celebrated according to original plans and in every club, whenever there was dancing, there was an animated scene of revelry in a blaze of electric illumination, blended with colourful decorations, in which scores of couples, in fancy costume, danced on into the small hours of the morning. Many Hongkong visitors were noted among those present at the dances.

Chinese New Year celebrations were not less enthusiastically entered into, principally by the Chinese residents of the Colo Y. As usual, the hundreds of "cliques" stands piled an active trade, while crackers boomed everywhere. Flags and banners, and lanterns and red paper decorated almost every house, and it was a cheery holiday scene that greeted the eye. The hundreds of fishing junks, belagued and decked in tinsel, in the waters of the Colo Y, contributed to make Macao more attractive than usual.

The Cabaret at the Grand Central Hotel has proved a first-class attraction. The decorations are bright and the music good, the novelty of the dancing—and the dancing partners—providing an opportunity to bring people out of their homes, even in the cold, damp weather now prevailing.

Considerable interest has been aroused by the news of the proposed establishment of greyhound racing at Macao, and it is believed that Macao interests are anxious to contribute substantially to the capital of the Company. Persons connected with the promotion of the new company state that they believe it will be possible to commence racing in two or three months' time.

At the same time, it is reported that there are possibilities of the re-commencement of horse racing, that the rights have been acquired by a prominent Hongkong racing man who is anxious to provide an outlet for mediocre ponies from

ROBBER ADMITS GUILT.

THREE-YEAR SENTENCE AT THE SESSIONS.

EXPRESSES SORROW.

Lau Kit, who pleaded guilty to robbery by two or more at the Criminal Sessions this morning, before Mr. Justice Wood, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment with hard labour. The indictment against accused was to the effect that on January 14, 1931, together with two other persons, he stole a gold watch and chain, two gold rings, a suit of clothing, two other pieces of clothing, $300 in money and a gold ring set with jade.

In admitting the indictment, accused said, "I did this, my Lord, but I am so sorry. I have been in Hongkong for 21 years and have never done anything wrong before."

In explaining the circumstances, Mr. Somerset Fitzroy stated that the robbery occurred at No. 62a, Bonham Street. The woman who occupied the house was away at Canton, and there were left in the house three or four children, of whom one was ill, and two amiable. At about seven o'clock on the evening of the day in question, accused, accompanied by two or three others, entered the house where they were well known, as one of them had borrowed money from one of the amahs and was supposed to be taking money in repayment. The men bound and gagged the occupants and took the articles mentioned. They stayed there all night and left at about six o'clock on the following morning.

It appeared that accused kept guard for the other men. According to his statement, he did not know they were going to the house to commit robbery, but when they arrived there he was given a knife and told to guard the door. The other men gave him $16 odd and several silver dollars. His statement added that he did not wish to take part but, when they were inside the house, he was forced to do so.

His Lordship asked if there was any confirmation of accused's statement that he had been in Hongkong for 21 years, and Mr. Fitzroy replied that there was not, as there was no record of him at all.

FAREWELL PARTY TO SHANGHAI TEAM.

PRESENTATION TO MR. W. E. HOLLANDS.

Speeches were few and brief at a very pleasant function at the Kwong Chau Restaurant last night when the Shanghai Interport team were entertained to Chinese "chow" before embarking on the Helan Maru.

Mr. H. K. Lee presided, congratulated Shanghai on their performances and wished them bon voyage, sentiments which were reiterated by Mr. R. K. Duncan and Mr. G. Hedley. Mr. Gash and Mr. Compas replied.

Most of those present accompanied the team to the Helan Maru where the Shanghai players took the opportunity of making a presentation to Mr. W. E. Hollands as a token of appreciation for his attention to matters of detail during their week's sojourn in Hongkong.

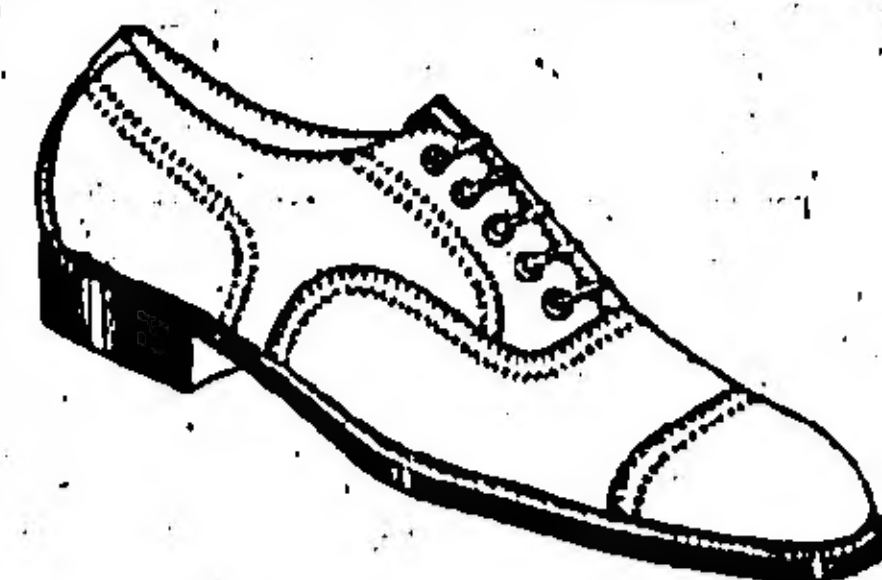

Mr. Hollands was the recipient of a silver cigarette case suitably inscribed, and in a brief speech of thanks, paid a tribute to his colleagues on the entertainments committee.

Hongkong. The Government has shown its willingness to help by granting the concession on most advantageous terms, and it is stated that a Hongkong company will be formed to conduct the business.

Lent has been ushered in at Macao with the usual solemn church festivities, commencing with the impressive procession on the first Saturday of Lent. Large numbers of visitors from Hongkong made the trip over to take part in the religious ceremonies, but the procession which was to have taken place on Sunday, Feb. 22, had to be postponed owing to unfavourable weather.

Among the many recent visitors were the football team of the Club de Recreio, of Hongkong, and St. Andrew's Troop of Boy Scouts, from Kowloon. The Hongkong footballers met the team of the Macao Sociedade Uniao Recreativa and suffered defeat by three goals to nil, but have promised to return with their full team some time next month.

The Kowloon Boy Scouts camped out at Macao for a couple of days and met the Macao Boy Scouts, and it was particularly pleasant to observe the friendly feeling that was engendered by the association of the Boy Scouts of the two Colonies.

HIS BLOOD NEEDS OXYGEN!

In all nervous derangements, impoverished blood is at the root of the trouble. Nervous exhaustion, neurasthenia, debility, neuralgia, result from malnutrition of the nerves, and mean that the blood is lacking in those elements which feed the nerves and keep them well-nourished and strong. When the blood is rich, red and plentiful, nervous troubles are speedily ended.

The best and most natural method of achieving this condition is by oxygenization of the blood. Oxygen means life. Every drop of blood thirsts for oxygen and it has been proved that the basic component of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enables the blood to absorb oxygen in large quantities. For nervous troubles and all ailments resulting from impoverished blood this world-famed remedy stands supreme.

SHANGHAI LOSE
FINAL GAME.SERVICES SETTLE DOWN TO CONDITIONS.

MARGIN OF 5 TO 1.

Shanghai lost the third match of the interport games by five goals to one, the United Services adapting themselves better to the wretched conditions and taking full advantage of the fact that Shanghai were deprived of the services of their goalkeeper for the better part of the second half.

The ground was in a terrible state, the wet surface rendering good football out of the question. Neither team could keep its feet in the early stages, but later in the game, the Services settled down extremely well and were well worth their success.

Shanghai began well enough and it was all against the run of the play when Gush opened the scoring for his opponents by turning a free kick for carrying into his own net. As a matter of fact, Chow would not have carried had he not been collared by an opponent and the spectators were greatly surprised when a free kick was given against Shanghai instead of against the Services.

However, it made little difference to the result. Shanghai went straight away and scored a real goal, Sinclair making a clever run through and beating Aitken in a race for the ball.

A groovy ball slipped off Chow's hands for the Services second goal, scored by Harris, just before half-time.

In the second half, after a long spell on the defensive, the Services broke through and Rush obtained a third goal, though it certainly appeared that Chow was heavily charged before the ball came anywhere near him. It was soon afterwards that he received the knock which put him out of the game for good, and with Sinclair between the posts, Dickinson and Atkins netted further goals.

The Services were the much more impressive side. Mullane and Henderson were splendid backs, kicking with remarkable accuracy in the conditions. The three half-backs gave nothing away, and there was some very nice combination on the wings. Shanghai were best served by Pote-Hunt, Monroe and Sinclair.

RACING AT MACAO.

NEW HONGKONG COMPANY
TO BE FORMED.

Macao, Feb. 22.
The transfer of the concession to conduct horse racing at Macao to Mr. G. H. Potts, of Hongkong, has been approved by the Government, and the deeds were registered on Saturday, Feb. 21. It is understood that Mr. Potts is acting on behalf of a Company which will be formed in Hongkong for the purpose of carrying on racing and that, in addition to support from Hongkong, it is believed that Macao sportsmen will also contribute to the attempt to revive pony racing.

Macao racing used to be very popular while it lasted some years ago, and when the Company stopped business, considerable regret was expressed at the failure to keep up the sport, for the Macao course was always looked upon as the logical outlet for those ponies that never seemed to have a chance of winning in Hongkong.

The trip to the Portuguese Colony was also looked upon as a holiday excursion and large crowds made the trip over from Hongkong in the special boats which the steamship companies provided.

It is gratifying to note that the sporting connexion inaugurated under such favourable circumstances will be revived, and the new racing will be looked forward to by racing men in Hongkong as well as Macao.

Business men at Macao ought to feel pleased that the popular race meetings will take place again, for they used to benefit greatly by the large crowds of visitors during the week-ends.

FENCING CLUB'S
TOURNEY.ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMME

Final of the Ladies' Foils.
Foil Contest.—Commr. Southby and Mr. Locke.

Weather permitting, the tourney will take place on the lawn, and tea will be served from 3.30 p.m. onwards.

CINEMA NOTES.

THE PERFECT LEG PROBLEM.

The Queen's Theatre will be a Mecca for lovers of musical comedy this week, judging from the enthusiastic approval with which "The Golden Calf," Fox Movietone comedy with music, was received at its showing last night.

"The Golden Calf" is great entertainment. The comedy and music are superb and the colourful comming between Sue Carol and Jack Mulholland, who enact the leading roles, is delightful.

"El Brendel, inimitable Swedish comedian, scores heavily in his role as a cartoonist, while Marjorie White, dynamic little blonde comedienne, repeats the success she scored in "Sunny Side Up."

Richard Keene and Paul Page, other featured players in the cast, also are performers of outstanding ability. Keene's song and dance numbers with Miss White being high spots of the production.

The Illustrators' Show, annual high jinks of Greenwich Village artists and their models, brings "The Golden Calf" to a spectacular climax. One hundred beautiful dancing girls are used in the ensembles and the staging leaves nothing to be desired.

Stillard Webb, the director, is to be congratulated for turning out such a well-balanced, outstanding production.

"True to the Navy."

Clara Bow answers to more nicknames than any other favourite on the screen.

The "It Girl" is the most popular. Her wind-blown wealth of curly hair, the place of her birth supply many names. She is called the "Brooklyn Bomber," "The Red-Head," "Paramount's Forest-Fire," "The Blaze from Brooklyn." Her vivid personality and youthfulness have contributed other names, such as "Queen of the Flappers." One writer persists in referring to her as "The Personality Kid." "The Kid" is another favourite.

The name most frequently used by her co-workers at the Paramount studios is "The Girl." It is a term of affection, of friendliness, for Clara Bow has never been known to have an enemy or deliberately to have wounded anybody's feelings.

Another nick-name popular among the studio personnel is "Captain." It started when Clara played in "The Fleet's in," one of her early starring pictures, and was revived during the filming of her latest vehicle, "True to the Navy," which the Central Theatre is showing from today.

Clara likes each and every one of her nick-names. It is only when someone with whom she is acquainted calls her "Miss Bow" that she becomes a bit suspicious. Such formality in work-day life she distrusts.

In "True to the Navy," Miss Bow plays the role of a soda fountain clerk, with a boyfriend on every battleship. Never serious with any of them, she, nevertheless, is true to them all. Frank Tuttle directed the picture.

"King of Jazz."

Universal's colossal all-Technicolour "King of Jazz," starring Paul Whiteman and his orchestra which comes to the Central Theatre soon, presents among other celebrities Jeanie Lang, "America's sweet-heart of the air," whose personality songs over coast-to-coast radio networks have made her nationally famous.

George Chiles, of musical comedy fame, and Don Rose and Marlin Statler, of the Orpheum and Keith circuits, collaborate in the rendition of the song hit "Ragumuffin Romeo."

When John Murray Anderson, the famous New York producer of the "Greenwich Village Pollies" and other shows who directed "King of Jazz" for Carl Laemmle, Jr., first conceived the "ragumuffin" idea, he called Mabel Wayne on the telephone in New York and told her exactly what he wanted. So when Anderson told her his idea one night, she wrote the music and then called him up and sang it to him from New York over the telephone the next night.

Meanwhile, Anderson wired Rose and Statler, who then were playing in Chicago and brought them to California post-haste. Miss Lang and Chiles sing the song hit in the picture to the accompaniment of Paul Whiteman's incomparable music, and Statler and Rose do one of the cleverest "rough house" dances ever screened.

Another of the most spectacular offerings in "King of Jazz," starring Paul Whiteman, is "The Song of the Dawn" accompanied by the cowboy chorus.

In a beautifully conceived atmospheric setting of the breaking dawn, Boice sings one of the song hits of "King of Jazz," an original number by Milton Ager and Jack Yellon, played by Paul Whiteman and his band. The song, like the number itself, is entitled "The Song of the Dawn" and gives Boice full scope for his talent.

Like the seven other big numbers in the picture, "The Song of the Dawn" was created by John Murray Anderson, who directed the Universal superproduction in its entirety.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON"
"THE AVENUE" "THE MURDER OF BACCHUS"

CHAPTER XLII

Bonnie Dundee's heart leaped,
but he forced himself to go softly.
"I suppose," he said, casually, "a fashionable school like this has plenty of carefully hushed-up scandals."

"I'll say it has!" Miss Earle retorted indignantly, and with ghoulish satisfaction. "Money can do anything! It makes my blood simply boil when I think of how those Foray girls in Hamilton—so snug and snobbish in their hick town
society—must be running poor Nita down, now that she's dead and can't defend herself! . . . If the truth was only known about some of them—"

Dundee could almost have embraced the homely, life-soured
spinster—she was making his task
so easy for him.

"I've met them all, of course,
since Mrs. Selim was murdered," he said deprecatingly, "and I must say they seem to be remarkably fine
women and girls—"

"Oh, are they?" Miss Earle
snorted. "Flora Hackett—Mrs.
Tracy Miles she is now—didn't happen to tell you the nice little fuss she kicked up when she was here? Oh, no! I guess not."

"She looks," Dundee agreed, "like a girl who would have made things lively."
"I'll say so!" Miss Earle
nearly had nervous prostration!
Miss Earle glanced on, then fearfully blushed for a moment.
"You know you've promised you'll never tell Miss Pendleton or Miss Macon that you talked to me!"

"You can depend on it that I will protect you," Dundee assured her.
"When did Flora Hackett kick up her little fuss?"

"Let's see. . . . Flora graduated in June, 1920," Miss Earle obligingly. "So it must have been in 1919—yes, because she had one more year back! . . . Money! . . .
She took the lead in our annual Easter play in 1919, and just because Serena Hart complimented her and told her she was almost as good as a professional—"

"Serena Hart?" Dundee wonder-ingly repeated the name of one of America's most popular and beloved stage stars.

"Yes—Serena Hart," Miss Earle
repeated proudly. "She was a Foray girl, too, and of course she did go into the chorus herself, after she graduated in—let's see—1917, because it was the second year after I'd come to work here—and Miss Pendleton nearly died, because she was afraid Foray's precious presence would be lowered; but when Serena became a star everything was proud to claim her. . . . Anyway, Serena comes to the Easter play every year she can. If she isn't in a Broadway play herself,
of course, and so she saw Flora
acting in the Easter play in 1919,
and told her she was awfully good.
She was, too, but not half the actress that little Penny Crain was,
when she had the lead in the play
four or five years ago."

Dundee's heart begged him to ask for more details of Penny's triumph, but his job demanded that he keep the now too-voluble Miss Earle to the business in hand.
"And Flora Hackett—" he prompted.

"Well, the next day after the play the Easter vacation began, you know, and Flora forged a letter from her father, giving her permission to spend the 10 days' Easter holiday with one of the girls who lived in Atlanta," Miss Earle continued, with great relish. "Well,
sir, right in the middle of the holidays, here came her father and mother—they were both alive then
—and asked for Flora! They wired the girl in Atlanta, and Flora wasn't there, and the Hacketts were nearly crazy. But as luck would have it, Mr. Hackett ran into a friend of theirs on Broadway, and this friend began to tease Mr.
Hackett about his daughter's being a chorus girl!"

"A chorus girl!" Dundee echoed, taking care not to show his disappointment.

"Of course, they nabbed her right out of the show, but that wasn't the worst of it!" Miss Earle went on dramatically and mysteriously.
"They tried to hush it up, of course,
but the word went through the school—like wildfire—that Flora wasn't only in the chorus, but that she was living with an actor who'd been writing fan letters to long before the Easter play went on!"

"Did you hear his name?" Dundee asked.

"No," Miss Earle acknowledged regrfully. "But I'll bet anything
it was the truth! . . . Why, Flora Hackett was so man-crazy she flirted scandalously with every male teacher in the school. The golf 'pro' we had then got so scared
of her he quit his job!"

"I suppose," Dundee prompted cautiously, "she wasn't any worse than some of the other Hamilton
girls."

"We'll," Miss Earle admitted reluctantly, "nothing ever came out on any of the others, but it looked mighty funny to me when Janet Raymond's mother came and took her out of school right in the middle of a term—and hauled her off to Europe for a whole year!"

And Janet-looking as healthy as any other girl in the school, except that she was crying half the time, and smuggling special delivery letters in and out by one of the maids—"

"Did you tell Nita these stories and point out the pictures of the girls?" Dundee had to risk asking.
Miss Earle froze instantly. "Naturally she was interested in the school, and once when she said it always made her mad the way
chorus girls were run down, I told her that in my opinion society girls were worse than actresses, and—well, of course, I gave her some examples, a lot of them worse than anything I've told you about Flora Hackett and Janet Raymond. . . .
I hope," she added viciously, "that Nita dropped a hint or two if Flora or Janet had the nerve to high-hat
her when she was in Hamilton!"

"Perhaps," she said, "Dundee agreed softly. "By the way, how did Nita happen to get the job here
of directing the Easter plays?"

"That's what the reporters wanted to know," Miss Earle smiled.
"But Miss Pendleton wouldn't tell them, for fear Serena wouldn't like it, and maybe be drawn into the scandal, when everybody knows she's as straight as a string—"

"Did Serena Hart get her the job?" Dundee was amazed.

"Yes. . . . Wait, I'll show you the letter of recommendation she wrote for Nita to Miss Pendleton," Miss Earle offered eagerly. "Remember, now, you're not to tell on me!"

Dear Miss Pendleton: The bearer, Juanita Leigh, is rather badly in need of a job, and I have suggested that she apply to you for a chance to direct the Easter play. I have known Miss Leigh personally for 10 years, and have the highest regard, both for her character and for her ability. Since you usually stage musical comedies, I think Miss Leigh, who has been a specialty dancer as well as an actress in musical comedy for about 12 years, would be admirably suited for the work. Knowing my love for Foray as you do, I do not have to assure you that I would suggest nothing which would be detrimental to the school's best interests.
Fondly yours,

Serena Hart.

"She was wrong there, but I know it wasn't Nita's fault," Miss Earle, who had been looking over his shoulder, commented upon the last sentence of the letter.

"When did I first meet Nita Leigh?" she repeated his question. "Let me think—Oh, yes!
The first year after I went on the stage—1917. We were in the chorus together in 'Tearing Tilly'
—a rotten show, by the way. The other girls of the chorus were awfully snooty to me, because I was that anathema, a 'society girl', but Nita was a darling. She showed me the ropes, and we became quite intimate—around the theatre only, however, since my

AGED WOMAN SMUGGLER.

OPIUM HIDDEN IN A PARASOL.

An old woman was produced before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning
as a "professional smuggler" of opium. Her record showed that, twenty-five years ago, she was convicted on a charge of keeping a "sly" brothel, and in 1926, she was fined for keeping a secret opium den.

Pleading guilty to the present charge of possession of two tins of contraband opium, she told the Court that she was given 50 cents to take the drug ashore for a man whom she met on board the Tai-shan coming in here at one o'clock this morning.

Revenue Officer Grimmett said
two tins of opium were discovered in a parasol which the woman endeavoured to throw away when intercepted by the searchers. He submitted that she was a professional smuggler, as demonstrated by her use of the parasol.

A fine of $240, or three months'
hard labour in default, was imposed.

For having had in his possession
50 tins of raw opium at the Kowloon-Canton Railway Station, Chung Wah-ching, was fined $3,120
or ten months' imprisonment.

Revenue Officer Tallon said the defendant was searched when he came off the train yesterday and the opium was found concealed in the false bottom of a box.

"You're working on poor Nita's murder?" she began without preamble, as she seated herself at her dressing table and indicated a de-script chair for the detective. "I was wondering how much longer
I could keep out of it. . . . Of course you've been pumping that poor, foolish Gladys Earle. . . .
Why, girls who look like that are always called Gladys—God! I'm tired! We've been at it since 10
this morning, but thank the Lord
we're through now for the day."

Dundee studied her with keen interest, and decided that, almost plain though she was, she was even more magnetic than when seen from the footlights. . . . Rather carelessly dressed, long brown hair rather tousled, her face very pale and haggard without the make-up which would give it radiance on Monday night, Serena Hart was yet one of the most attractive women Dundee had ever met—and one of the kindest, he felt suddenly sure. . . .

"When did I first meet Nita Leigh?" she repeated his question. "Let me think—Oh, yes!

or March, I believe."

"Then do you know, Miss Hart, whether Nita got married during the winter?" Dundee asked.

"Why, yes, she did!" Serena Hart answered, her brow clearing after a frown of concentration.
"I can't remember exactly when,
but it was before the show closed
—certainly a few weeks before,
because the poor child was a deserted bride days before the closing notice was posted."

"Deserted!" Dundee exclaimed.
"Did you meet her husband, Miss Hart?"

"ART AND MRS. BOTTLE."

AN ANSWER TO SOME MISGIVINGS.

The forthcoming production by the A.D.C. of Mr. Donn Levy's much discussed play "Art and Mrs. Bottle" has given rise to some misgivings as to whether it will accord with the taste and preference of a Hongkong audience—that for some little understood reason is supposed to be slightly different from other audiences.

Fortunately, this play is slightly different from other plays and the frailty of these misgivings will be apparent to anyone who can appreciate the irony that may be missed by those whose doubts are less concerned with the nature of things, than with the outrageous conduct of the Bottles.

There are those certainly who will say that, judged by conventional standards, it is not a good play. Well, it isn't! They will say that there is nothing of the substance of Art in the stuff of Mrs. Bottle. Neither is there! They will say that it is an immoral play. So it is—very immoral!

Frankly, "Art and Mrs. Bottle" might have been written, and probably was, for no other purpose than the praiseworthy one of shocking the Middle Classes. Admitting all that, it is well that the A.D.C. should occasionally present to its supporters something other than the silent call of honesty, hope and virtue.

We have in "Art and Mrs. Bottle" the unrestrained and un-intellectual Bolshevism characterized by Remy de Gourmont as individualism in literature, liberty in art, and abandonment of existing forms. "We are young," he says. "We are experimentalists, but we ask to be judged by our own standards, not by those that have governed other men at other times."

That is the sentiment of Mrs. Bottle and the younger Bottles and their associates. They voice it entirely in keeping with their peculiar tendencies. If those tendencies call for criticism it is not because they are important but because they are not. This play, with all its blushing associations on it, is merely a conflict of ideas between a thoroughly worthy Master Plumber on the one hand and his thoroughly unworthy wife and rebellious offspring on the other.

A less able playwright than Mr. Donn Levy could have made no more of so commonplace a theme than a grabbag out of which stencilled intellects might have snatched tinselled phrases and dialectic similitudes. That the author has, out of such unpromising material, evolved an admittedly brilliant satire on the habits of thought of the ultra-modern set does credit to his skill, though it may do less than justice to Art.

To the dramatic mind Art is a very convenient tag to ticket what may mildly be termed immorality. This, of course, is not strictly in accordance with Bolshevism, but it is very much in accordance with Bottlesism. The real purpose of

THE PHILHARMONIC.

SOCIETY'S RULES ALTERED AT SPECIAL MEETING.

For the purpose of enabling the incoming committee in each year to have the whole season in front of them, members of the Hongkong Philharmonic Society, at an Extraordinary General Meeting held at the Cathedral Hall yesterday afternoon, passed alterations to three rules.

The Hon. Mr. W.E.L. Shenton, who presided, explained that suggestions had been made which had led to the alterations, which would have the effect that the incoming committee would have the whole season in front of them. Previously the incoming committee had been appointed half-way through the season, and they had had to carry on with the work of the old committee as well as with their new work.

The effect of the alterations would be that the financial year would close on the last day of February instead of on the last day of June, and that the annual general meeting would have to be held, on or before April 10, instead of on or before October 10.

On the proposition of the chairman, seconded by Mr. D. M. Goodall, the alterations were agreed to.

Art is to make things seem more beautiful than they are and the greatest Art essentially has its roots in convention. The Art of Mr. Levy, who at his best is no arbiter of elegances, is to let convention go hang, and in this play we are treated to a luminous demonstration of how it is done.

Strangely enough we are not greatly shocked. In reading this play we have something of the feeling of George Gissing who said he had no sense of sin. If the World that we have willed is to exist at all, revolt must be perennial. We play the sedulous ape to convention not because we are fools, but because we have not the courage to be Bottles. Our boredom of the eternal proprieties leads us sooner or later to the exceptional and the esoteric, and so it is that, being mercifully unconscious of what the next generation will think of us, we regard with fearful satisfaction the revolt of the Bottles of our age, even though their fete galante may end but in the harsh reality of sanitary engineering.

The disappointing feature of an otherwise moderately good play is that the unctuous rectitude of the insufferable Mr. Bottle prevails in the end. Virtue is quite unreasonably rewarded and a crescendo of moral sentiment concludes with "Art for Art's sake, but drains for God's sake."

Maybe! But if Mr. Levy had known how to play a poker hand Judy Bottle might not have got off so easily!—Contributed.

OBITUARY.

A FAMOUS OPERATIC SINGER.

Sydney, Feb. 23: The death is announced of Dame Nellie Melba, the famous Australian operatic singer.

Later.

Dame Melba died very peacefully in a nursing home at 6 p.m. in the presence of members of her family, while a few friends, including the famous flautist, Lombardi, accompanied to Dame Melba, were nearby.

Dame Melba was taken ill aboard the liner Cathay, en route to Australia, and was sent to hospital in Melbourne on October 10. She improved, and so was allowed to leave hospital, but had a relapse on January 26, and went to hospital in Sydney with skin infection. The doctors were most reticent with regard to her condition, as Dame Melba insisted on reading the newspapers containing bulletins as to her condition. —Reuter.

[Dame Melba, the famous prima donna, whose real name is Helen Porter Mitchell, was born in Melbourne from which she took her stage title. The daughter of a Scottish settler, she was from babyhood a keen musician and at the age of three she began to receive piano lessons from her mother who was of Spanish origin. Her first public appearance as a singer was at the early age of six when she gave two little ballads at a church concert to her own accompaniment. When she was ten she studied music with two Melbourne teachers for four years and then received piano lessons from Mme. Charbonnet, Kellermann and organ tuition from Mr. Summers. Her voice by that time had given indications of its later purity and flexibility, and her vocal training was begun at the Presbyterian Ladies' College which she was attending. She then sang in the choir of St. Francis' Cathedral, Melbourne, and at local concerts as Mrs. Armstrong, for she had married Capt. Armstrong, the son of an Irish baronet. In 1884 she sang at a concert given by the Melbourne Liedertafel with such success that she decided to attempt an operatic career in England and went to London with an introduction to Wilhelm Ganz who on hearing her singing arranged for her to appear at a concert at the Prince's Hall at which he was conducting the orchestra.

Her father was appointed a commissioner to the Paris Exhibition and, taking her with him, he placed her under the care of Mme. Mathilde Marchesi. After studying some of the big operatic parts for a year she made her debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto" at the Theatre de la Monnaie in Brussels, assuming the stage name of Melba. Her success was as brilliant as it was instantaneous, and she also appeared as Lakme, Violetta, Ophelia and Lucia. In the same year Sir Augustus Harris engaged her for the Italian opera season at Covent Garden and in 1888 she made her first London appearance in "Lucia di Lammermoor," again with great success. After an engagement at Brussels she went to Paris where she

CORRESPONDENCE.

London on the Long Wave.

Sir,—Perhaps the following will interest some local listeners-in who are not able usually to sit up into the small hours of the morning to get programmes from the short-wave station at Chelmsford.

On Sunday morning last at about five o'clock the London Regional Station (355 metres) was tuned in on a simple, locally-made set (Det. and 2 L.F.) belonging to Mr. H. P. Leaver, of the Peak. For two hours or so, fair volume on the loudspeaker was obtained, the quality of reception being excellent in the entire absence of atmospheric interference. A concert was heard, followed by the Regional News, and subsequently a programme of Dance Music from the Mayfair Hotel. Reception faded considerably about a quarter past seven o'clock, but was held until nearly eight, when Morse interference occurred.

Such reception may be unusual, but there are possibly set-owners in the Colony who are keen enough on getting London to try to pull it in on the long wave when the short-wave station is not available and when there is no work to go to after breakfast.

The location on the condenser dials is almost exactly as for the reception of Bombay.

FOR BLIND GIRLS.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH GROUP VISIT INDUSTRIAL HOME.

On Saturday afternoon, at 3 p.m., some 15 members and friends of the St. Peter's Church Group of the Victoria Diocesan and Missionary Association gathered at Blakely Pier where a special bus was in waiting to convey them on their annual visit to the Blind Home at Pokfulam.

A most interesting musical entertainment was given by the girls which was followed by a few items by the visitors. At the conclusion of this the girls were presented with a dress and a tin of biscuits each, the whole of which making a very acceptable New Year's gift.

Readers will remember that in September last, through the medium of this paper, the notice of the public was drawn in connexion with the Annual Outing for the 60 or so inmates of the Home as the result of which it turned out to be a great success and the sum of $130 over-subscribed, duly handed to Miss Morris, Matron-in-Charge of the Home, was subsequently utilised, as stated above, in the purchasing of dresses and materials and the tins of biscuits, at the girls' request, for them.

The members of the St. Peter's Group wish to take this opportunity to thank all concerned in their sympathetic and generous assistance towards the really great needs of these poor unfortunate women and girls.—Contributed.

autumn of that year it was announced that she would make her "swell" appearance at the Covent Garden Opera in the summer of 1926.

Since that time little has been heard of Dame Melba, until her recent illness.]

BUS & CAR OVER EMBANKMENT.

TWO MISHAPS ON ISLAND ROAD.

LUCKY ESCAPES.

Two accidents, in which motor vehicles ran over the embankment on the Island Road at Aberdeen, are reported to-day, but fortunately in neither instance was any serious damage caused, notwithstanding the fact that in both cases the vehicles dropped some twenty feet.

An Aberdeen bus, which was being tested by a fitter skidded on the slippery surface of the road on Monday and running over the bank at the bottom of the Dairy Farm Hill on the Aberdeen Road, dropped a distance of about twenty feet below the level of the road. The driver escaped injury and except for minor damage to the bus the vehicle was intact, even though it struck a fairly large tree and snapped it in half.

It appears from an inspection of the scene that the driver had applied his brakes on seeing a quantity of debris on the roadway and the bus skidded on the surface. Before he was able to check its career, the vehicle had run over the bank.

The Public Works Department Morris Minor No. 14 was involved in the second accident yesterday at about noon when the vehicle, which had been parked on the side of the road following an earlier mishap, toppled over the embankment.

The car was being driven by the Government driver with Mr. J. G. Campbell as a passenger and was travelling along Aberdeen Road near the Distillery when a Chinese pedestrian was knocked down. The car was parked on the side of the road, near the bridge, while both the driver and Mr. Campbell went to the assistance of the injured man. They were examining the Chinese for any possible injuries when suddenly they noticed the car moving.

The driver rushed forward and caught hold of the back of the car but was unable to prevent it from running over the embankment. The front of the car was somewhat damaged.

RED SEA SLAVE TRADE.

BRITAIN CO-OPERATES WITH FRANCE & ITALY.

London, Feb. 23. Replying to a Parliamentary question regarding the Red Sea slave trade, the Foreign Under-Secretary, Mr. Hugh Dalton, said a considerable measure of co-operation had been established between the British Government and the French and Italian Governments.

In addition to a British patrol, French and Italian warships are regularly stationed in the Red Sea, British officials in the neighbouring territories periodically meet their French and Italian colleagues to exchange information, and officers on British sloops are also kept in touch with the local authorities in French and Italian territories.

It is proposed to experiment shortly in the use of float planes.

YEN HSI-SHAN TO DEPART.

LEAVING FOR JAPAN THIS WEEK.

Tientsin, Feb. 23. Dairen messages state that Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, the retired Commander-in-Chief of the Northern rebels who is residing at Dairen, has decided to leave for Japan on Wednesday on Thursday. This confirms the belief that the Shanai Commanders in North-Western China are sincere in their expressed willingness to adhere to the Nanking programme of disarmament.

NEW MINISTER TO STOCKHOLM.

MR. A. C. KERR RECEIVES APPOINTMENT.

London, Feb. 23. His Majesty the King has approved of the appointment of Mr. Archibald Clark Kerr, lately British Minister at Santiago, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Stockholm.

Mr. Kerr was Minister to Chile from 1928 to 1930. He entered the Diplomatic Service in 1906 and has served in Berlin, Buenos Aires, Washington, Rome, Teheran, Tangier, Cairo and the Central American Republics.

THE SILVER LOAN PROPOSALS.

LINEBARGER CLAIMS AUTHORITY.

SENATE COMMITTEE FAVOURS CONFERENCE.

DIVIDED OPINIONS.

Washington, Feb. 19. Mr. Paul Linebarger to-day announced that he had received a cable from Mr. Hu Han-min, Chairman of the Legislative Yuan, Nanking, authorising him to open negotiations with the United States government for a loan to China of a thousand million ounces of silver, amounting to about $260,000,000 at the current price of silver.

Shanghai, Feb. 20. The Sincanpao yesterday reported that Mr. Linebarger's representative in Nanking had made a statement that the loan called for 300,000,000 ounces. The unofficial negotiations had proved most satisfactory and they had now turned into an official nature.

Three Favourable Points.

The favourable points were:
1. That there was no necessity for a guarantee;
2. That it should be used for the development of China's industries, to increase productivity and extend the uses of silver so as to raise the value of silver;
3. That the interest should be from two to 2½ per cent.

Proposals Approved.

Washington, Feb. 18. The silver situation received the concentrated attention of official Washington to-day as the Senate foreign relations committee approved two proposals of the Pittman committee and as Mr. Paul M. W. Linebarger, an adviser to the Chinese National government at Nanking, declared again that China is seeking a loan of 1,000,000,000 ounces of silver.

The Senate foreign relations committee, of which Senator William E. Borah, Independent Republican of Idaho, is the chairman voted to send out a favourable report on resolutions presented to it by Senator Key Pittman, Democrat of the silver producing state of Nevada.

The favourable report sent out by the foreign relations committee calls upon President Hoover to enter into negotiations with other governments for a plan designed to prevent abnormal fluctuations in silver values.

It calls upon President Hoover, also, to convene an international conference, if necessary, to seek an agreement as to the uses and status of silver as money.

Mr. Linebarger Interviewed.

In an interview with the United Press Mr. Linebarger declared that the Nanking government already has selected two other commissioners to join him in the United States to conduct negotiations for a loan of 1,000,000,000 ounces of silver to China.

Mr. Linebarger exhibited a telegram he has received from Nanking in which Mr. Hu Han-min, the president of the legislative yuan of the Chinese National government, is reported to have approved the plan for a silver loan to China and which reports him as giving his support to the effort. Mr. Linebarger is making in Washington.

Nanking Divided.

It was learned that the Chinese Legation here has not been informed of Mr. Hu Han-min's reported attitude.

Further, it was declared, unofficially, by observers that there are indications that in Nanking there is a difference of opinion as to the advisability of the proposed loan to China and as to the nature of Mr. Linebarger's commission.

Will Senate Find Time?

Washington, Feb. 18. Interested circles in Washington to-night, speculated upon whether the Senate will find time to take action on resolutions calling upon President Hoover to convene an international silver conference before the present session of Congress adjourns sine die at midnight of March 3.

Unless the Senate passes the favourable report sent out by Senator William E. Borah's foreign relations committee to-day before March 3 the matter will have to be reintroduced when the newly elected 72nd Congress convenes in December, unless an extra session of Congress is summoned in the meantime.

Observers believe that the favourable report sent out by the foreign relations committee to-day has a better chance of passage because it does not deal with any

U.S. ANTI-SOVIET LEGISLATION.

EMBARGO ON CONVICT-MADE OR HANDLED GOODS.

EFFECTIVE IN APRIL.

Washington, Feb. 23. The allegations of the employment of convict labour in Soviet industry, particularly in the lumber camps, has had a different response in America to that accorded in Britain.

The House of Representatives to-day passed by an overwhelming majority the Kendall-Hawley Bill, strengthening the 1930 Tariff Act against convict-made goods.

Under the new Bill, convict-made goods are prohibited from entry into the United States, the prohibition becoming effective on April 1, 1931, instead of January 1, 1932, under the 1930 Tariff Act. It also applies an embargo against goods handled, transported, loaded or unloaded, wholly or partly, by convict or forced labour, as well as against goods manufactured by such workers.

An important provision admits the deposition of agents of the United States abroad in proving the employment of convict labour.

BOMB PLOT BY CUBAN REVOLUTIONARIES.

HEAVY GUARD PLACED ON PRESIDENT'S PALACE.

New York, Feb. 23. Unrest continues to be reported from Cuba.

A bomb was to-day discovered on top of the Presidential Palace at Havana, in which connexion it is pointed out that the President resides on the upper floor.

As a consequence of the discovery, twenty suspects have been arrested and a heavy guard placed at the Palace.

Ten policemen and 50 workers were wounded on Saturday during a fight. Seventeen head students of the Havana High School were on the same day imprisoned for sedition.

lost its force for propelling the bullet. Counsel produced the bullet which travelled under the skin, and the one which went through Manton's arm, being later picked up from the floor, showing that they were not damaged in any way. He said that as far as he knew the third bullet had not been extracted from Manton's back.

After demonstrating that the trigger of the revolver had to be pulled back with fairly good pressure for each shot, counsel said the Crown would submit that, as three shots were fired, they were deliberate shots at Manton, and could not have been done by accident.

The case is proceeding.

CHINESE NAVAL CHANGES.

RESIGNATION OF HEAD OF THE SERVICE.

Nanking, Feb. 23. With the resignation of the head of the Nanking Navy, Admiral Yang Shu-chwang, important changes are likely to take place, and it is announced that Vice-Admiral Chan Shao-kuan may be appointed to fill the vacancy.

For some years Admiral Yang has acted as head of the Navy and concurrently as Military Governor of Fukien Province.

concrete plan to lend silver, either coin or as a commodity, to China.

Considerable Opposition. There is considerable opposition to a silver loan to China on the ground that such action would further depress the value of the white metal in the world markets and observers believe that there does not remain sufficient time for the present session of Congress to take action on issues of a controversial nature.

The situation here has been somewhat complicated by the receipt of dispatches from China indicating that the officials of the Nanking government are not in entire agreement among themselves as to the advisability of accepting a silver loan. There is some speculation as to whether the conference, which President Hoover is to be asked to call, will undertake to deal with a proposal that the interested foreign powers join in extending a silver loan to China.
